

Connecting to Conservation with The Marshketeers 24 hours, a team of committed birders, and You!

It's that time of year again, when The Marshketeers gear up (literally!) for the NJ Audubon World Series of Birding. On Saturday, May 10, with optics in hand, we'll criss-cross Cape May County in a caffeine-and-carb-fueled quest, searching for birds and raising critical funds for conservation.

You are the wind beneath our wings

Your past support of The Marshketeers has motivated us to rouse ourselves from our warm beds into the pre-dawn darkness, brave the elements, and seek out our feathered friends wherever they may be. Last year, The Marshketeers tallied 146 species and, with your generous support, raised more than $11,000. For 2025, we're aiming to reach $15,000 for conservation. Can we count on you once again?

Help us soar!

By pledging today, YOU are directly supporting the life-saving work of our coastal bird conservation programs, and helping us study and protect threatened species that rely on coastal wetlands – species like Black-crowned Night Herons, Black Skimmers, American Oystercatchers, Purple Martins, and Salt Marsh Sparrows. Your generous gift today can help us make a real difference for birds!

Make it happen - make your gift today!

- Pledge an amount per species identified, and send your contribution after we tally the results.
- Contribute a fixed amount to send in right away.
- Offer an additional pledge based on whether we spot this year's "Bonus Bird," the Black-crowned Night Heron.
